We trained over 100 Responders in June 2016; join us this year as we expand the Network of Neighbors in Philadelphia

Trainer: Dr. Robert Macy
International Trauma Center

This 2.5-day training will equip attendees to support individuals and communities after incidents of violence. The two trainings included are:

- Psychological First Aid—an evidence-informed approach for assisting children, adolescents, adults, and families in the aftermath of disaster and terrorism
- Post-Traumatic Stress Management—a community-based acute trauma response intervention to be utilized in the wake of community violence

Trauma Responders who attend the full training will be equipped to offer group supports, which

- Foster the natural, human tendency to group together, seeking solace and safety after traumatic incidents
- Reduce acute traumatic stress common among survivors
- Refer to and access community based resources as needed

13 IACET CEUs are available after full training attendance.
